

LECTURE - FACULTY OF LAW

NEW WORLD ORDERS

Varieties of Regionalism and the Politics of Global Pluralism

In her article, co-written with Ronit Levine-Schnur, Prof. Jennifer Brick Murtazashvili explores how regional cooperation is changing beyond traditional models of integration. She shows how states increasingly rely on flexible and overlapping forms of cooperation in areas such as trade, security, and infrastructure. The article develops a way of understanding regionalism within today's global pluralism, highlighting how countries build diverse partnerships to maintain autonomy and navigate an increasingly complex international landscape.

OPENING REMARKS

Prof. Yishai Blank

Dean, The Buchmann Faculty Of Law

TUESDAY, MAY 26TH 2026

15:00

THE SONIA AND EDWARD KOSSOY ROOM CONFERENCE (307)
THE BUCHMANN FACULTY OF LAW

SPEAKER

Prof. Jennifer Brick Murtazashvili

School of Public and International Affairs, University of Pittsburgh, USA

Prof. Murtazashvili is a Professor at the University of Pittsburgh's School of Public and International Affairs, with secondary appointments in the Departments of Economics and Political Science. She is the Founding Director of the Center for Governance and Markets, a Nonresident Scholar in the Asia Program at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

- The seminar will be delivered in English
 - The seminar is open to the public
 - Academic Host: Dr. Ronit Levine
- Scan for the full abstract and speaker bio

